The 2011 YouthCAN Summer Studio is about people, the land and the creative ways these relationships evolve. You will collaborate with professional artists, designers, writers, researchers, community organizers and fellow youth leaders to explore the environment and how the land shapes and is shaped by the Asian Pacific American experience. This will happen in the Museum and outdoors. Tell us what excites you about participating in this summer studio:

The 2011 YouthCAN Summer Studio is at The Wing Luke Museum. We are an arts and cultural institution that strives to connect everyone to the rich history and dynamic cultures of Asian Pacific Americans through vivid storytelling and inspiring experiences. Tell us why you want to spend your summer afternoons between 1 and 5 PM with us:
